

Do I get the bank to give my account number to any one once I open an account? Of course not. A telephone number is an account number with the phone company and I don't think it should be made available without written consent!